

Our proposed reservoir in the Fens

Latest news

Autumn 2025

Issue 10

We're pleased to announce our plans to launch a third phase of consultation.

Anglian Water and Cambridge Water's proposed new reservoir in the Fens is a major investment that will secure water supplies for future generations.

We are committed to developing the reservoir in a way that delivers lasting benefits for the region – a new destination in Cambridgeshire where water, people and nature can come together and thrive.

Consultation launching on 15 October

Our phase three consultation will take place from 15 October to 10 December and will include:

- Updates to the reservoir design showing potential opportunities for leisure, areas for wildlife, and links to surrounding towns and villages.
- Updated proposals for the raw water and treated water infrastructure we would need to transfer water from sources to the reservoir, treat it and supply it to Anglian Water and Cambridge Water customers – providing landowners and communities in these areas with more detail.
- Information on how we could deliver the project including our early thinking on construction and transport options.
- Information on our approach to the environment including how we're assessing the project's potential impacts, what we've learned to date, and the steps we could take to manage any impacts during both construction and operation.
- Early plans on providing power for the reservoir, including our current proposals for powering the site using renewable technology.

Community events

We'll be holding consultation events for you to meet our team and find out more about our proposals. For the first time, we'll have a 3D model of the reservoir, showing the embankments and the features, it could include. Details of the events are now on our website here. We look forward to seeing you there.

More information on the latest proposals, including maps and visualisations, will be available on 15 October when the consultation launches.
